

THE LONDON TEXTILE FAIR – PRESS RELEASE

Textile Events are getting ready for another busy summer, with two fairs in July, in London and New York. Beside the historical TLTF, held on the third week of July, the second edition of Texfusion – New York will be held the following week at the Penn Plaza Pavilion (Central Manhattan).

The London Textile Fair – 16th and 17th of July 2019

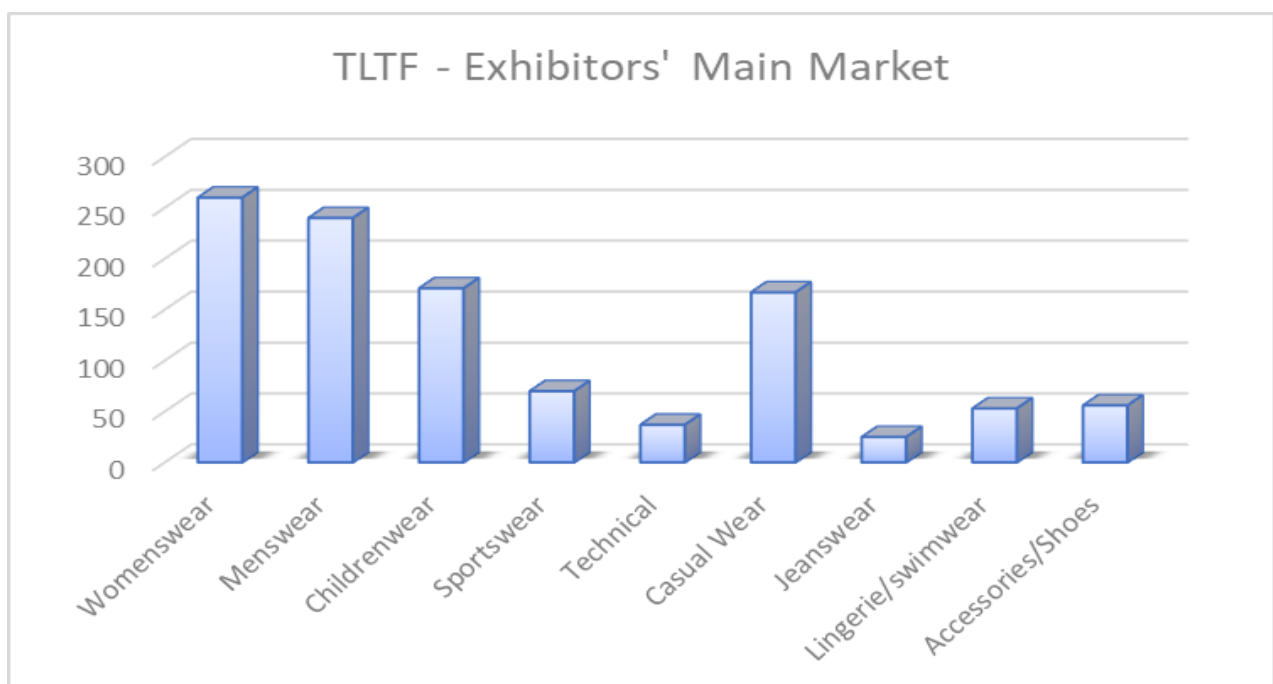

TLTF starts off the industry exhibition season. It is a regular event for all British buyers, with increasing presence of buyers travelling from France, Germany, Italy, Northern Europe, Russia and the Middle East. The July edition focuses on Autumn/Winter 2020 pre-collections and highlights from the current collections.

Around 500 exhibitors are expected at the Business Design Centre, with more than 700 collections for fashion fabrics, accessories and trims, print designs and vintage garments.

Within the fashion fabrics hall there is a leading presence from Italy and Turkey together covering more than 50% of the exhibiting space, followed by United Kingdom 17%, Portugal 11%, France 8%, Spain 4%, Germany 2%, Others 4%.

EXHIBITORS' MAIN MARKET:

52% of the exhibitors within the fashion fabrics hall presented fabrics for womenswear main market, 45% for menswear and 34% for childrenwear. An increase of sportswear, technical and swimwear which together present the 33% of the textile exhibitors.

SUSTAINABLE SOURCING: After the success of January 2019, the Sustainable trend Forum will host a larger number of collections in July. The forum aims to educate and inspire visitors, in line with the industry trends which see environmental and social matters becoming a priority for an increasing number of companies. Products listed under the forum are from natural fibres (like hemp, linen or wool) to organic cotton, recycled fabrics (wool, polyester, leather) and sustainable dyed and finished products. Stay tuned!

Texfusion New York – 24th and 25th of July 2019

Texfusion – New York is hosting its second edition after the successful launch in January 2019

The show presents textiles and accessories collections from around 60 exhibitors travelling from Italy, United Kingdom, France, Turkey, Portugal, Ireland, China, Hong Kong and more.

The venues location is of extreme importance for the show's success. The Penn Plaza Pavilion is in central Manhattan, in front of Penn Station within the Garment District, and walking distance from the famous high street and city landmarks. Plenty of natural light, the Penn Plaza is the perfect place to source for international textiles manufacturers.

NEW: A new hall dedicated to print design will be launched in July, adding value to the already wide selection of products...more information about exhibitors will be communicated soon, stay tuned!
